Public Awareness Campaign--The Public Awareness Task Force met twice. To build awareness that Lodi is a bike friendly city, Keith Colgan, Keith Colgan Photography, will photograph pro bono in exchange for cleaning up two of his bikes; Mike Georguson, Valley Outdoor Advertising, will try to obtain bus advertising. Keith will photograph and send to Mike for formatting; Mike will send to Vina Moore at Sign Tek Inc. to create yard signs and banners. Order of 100 double sided yard signs--$15.50 per sign; banners (three feet by six feet) cost $125.00 each. Grant funds from the Rose Foundation will pay for the campaign. Plan is to feature Lodians who are cyclists, build awareness that all ages and abilities cycle in Lodi. Impactful images will focus on individuals known in the community individuals, conveying a positive message borrowing from Bike Cleveland's "We're All Drivers" campaign. Possible subjects include: Joe Lange, Norm Mowery, Dave Phillips, Brian and Karin Stark, Vanessa and Steve, Low Riders Bike Club.

Greenline Feasibility Study--The City of Lodi and its partners, Bike Lodi and San Joaquin Council of Governments (SJCOC), released a Request for Proposal (RFP) to seek a consultant or consultant team to conduct a feasibility study for transforming an approximately 1.75-mile Union Pacific spur line right-of-way owned in fee by the railroad into a railbanked multimodal bicycle and pedestrian trail. The right-of-way served a General Mills plant within the City that shuttered in 2015.
